T. V. Ferrell purchased of Thomas McBeath, known as the Vickery property, comprising about four acres with a residence, barn and six cottages thereon, for $1,100.—Somerset Journal.

A telegram to banker John M. Bigginbotham announces the death of William Hiatt, a Lancaster boy, at Springfield, Mo. He is the third member of his family to die in a short while.

Of Mr. Samuel A. Newell, who died at Somerset last week, the Journal says: "He was a man of prominence in the community, based upon his solid merits and exemplary character. Some of his lovable characteristics were brought out by interviews with those who knew him best. He had long been one of the chief directing spirits in public affairs of the county. He was a man of great energy of purpose, enterprising industry, and methodical habits; accomplished with fidelity and ability, whatever he undertook. No man enjoyed more fully the respect and confidence of the community, and today the thoughts of all who knew him are sorrowful and sad at his demise."

HUBBLE.

Ben Hugger has moved back from Cincinnati. Rans Carman's saw mill has been taken to Casey county to do some sawing there. Miss Mamie Carrish has returned to her home in Spencer county, after making many friends here, while visiting Miss Lela Robinson.

Attorney General Breckinridge, in an opinion furnished to the secretary of State, holds that notaries public appointed by W. S. Taylor after Jan. 31, 1900, in close conversation with Chas. V. Inley and Wharton Golden. This is the day Noaks claims he heard him conspire. Powers previously swore that he was sick in bed all that day.

S. A. Pettlefield said Attorney Sinclair had said that the shot sounded like it came from the office of the secretary of State. Sinclair said he did not swear it.

J. W. Daugherty, Gen. Breckinridge's colored porter, contradicted John Perkins, Collier's porter. Perkins had told him he did not carry an order to the arsenal calling out the militia and that he would not swear it.

Rohr, Noaks offered to read his letters to Miss Blankenship, for which he had telegraphed, but defense didn't want to hear them.

James Walker, colored, heard John Perkins say he had not carried Collier's order to arsenal for militia and that he would not so testify although they wanted him to.

IN OLD VIRGINIA.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 11.—To one who remembers how this city looked after being looted and most of it burned by the "Yankee" army just before the surrender of Lee and his starving and ragged remnant of heroes, its present appearance is as gratifying as its recuperation has been wonderful. In fact the city of 1900 very little resembles that of 1865. Splendid buildings have been erected in the places of those burned and the city has spread to the west till what were farming lands then, now present beautiful homes and substantial business houses. No city in the South has finer private residences and grounds and none gives greater evidence of thrift and prosperity. The Capitol Square, as the beautiful grounds enclosing the Capitol, executive mansions and other State buildings is called, is a charming park of many acres and is kept in perfect condition by the convicts from the penitentiary located in the city. The capitol building is not near so imposing as the magnificent new city hall nearby, but its historic connections make it one of the most interesting buildings in the world. It was built in colonial times and besides being the seat of the State government, was the capitol of the Confederate States. It is filled with ancient and historic documents, paintings and statues, together with many relics of the revolutionary and other wars. Days could be interestingly spent in examination of the almost numberless articles of historic nature, and a description of them would fill many volumes. On a large sheet appears a declaration of the demands and intentions of the Confederate Congress, to which, with those of the other members, the well-known signature of Kentucky's distinguished attorney general is attached. It may be a fac simile of the original paper, but it looks like the original and if Robt. J. Breckinridge didn't sign the document, the lithographer has gotten his signature so perfect that the "general" himself couldn't tell if it is genuine or copied. The square contains numerous statues, besides a large monument surmounting which is an equestrian statue of George Washington and around which on pedestals appear in bronze the immortal Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and other distinguished sons of the mother of statesmen and presidents. A fine life size statue of Henry Clay, in marble, of Stonewall Jackson, in bronze, and others are distributed at intervals over the square, which even in this parched and dried up season retains most of its eternal beauty and invitingness.

The greatest improvement of the many great ones notable on every hand, is "The Jefferson," by far the finest hotel in the South. It occupies an entire block, extending from Franklin to Main Streets, and is as magnificent of exterior as its palatial of interior. It has rooms for over 600, a hall capable of seating over 1,000 and a court in the centre filled with rare flowers and exotic plants whose beauty and fragrance are rivalled only by the superabundance of the surroundings. A very large statue of Thomas Jefferson, the father of democracy, is in the centre of the court and accounts for the name of the hotel. The building and grounds represent an outlay of $1,000,000 and judging from the charges the proprietor tries to get his money back from each guest. But the fare and accommodations are worth a small fortune.

There are many things in which Richmond takes the lead. For one she is the largest manufacturer of tobacco in the world. The amount invested in the business is stated at about three millions with annual sales of ten millions. The only locomotive making establishment in the South is here and does a very extensive business. More paper boxes are made here than in all the country combined, while ship building has recently become an important industry. The city is at the head of tidewater and the falls here being much more pronounced than those at Louisville furnish a power that has been harnessed to run the many manufacturers for which it is noted. The capital of the glorious Old Dominion has a glorious past, which will only be excelled by its future greatness.

Since I have been in Virginia, I have almost lost the run of political and other affairs. The Richmond papers contain little of interest to a Kentuckian, in fact very little of general interest. In the matter of newspapers, the city has not kept pace with other cities of its size nor with its other enterprises. As important as we Kentuckians think the Powers trial, the matter is dismissed with sometimes not over a "stick full," while some of the papers ignore it altogether. I do not believe Virginians read newspapers as much as Kentuckians do. At least, I am sure that if there was greater demand for newspapers, there would be better ones here. New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington papers are in Richmond by 9 A.M. and their facilities for news being so much greater, their circulation also militates against the Richmond papers. The New York World runs a special train to carry its papers and other metropolitan dailies are almost as enterprising.

I have heard very little of general politics here, except now and then to hear the admirable acceptance speech of Bryan at Indianapolis favorably commented upon. The average unthinking man, who ascribes every good thing to the result of McKinley's "wise" administration, is having his credulous confidence rudely shaken by the prevailing and destroying drought. They think that he oughtn't to allow the earth to be parched as it is being nor the crops ruined as they are, and will cease to sing psalms of praise to him for blessings which the good Lord alone has vouchsafed. They are beginning to realize that much of the boasted prosperity of the country at large is imaginary and confined mostly to the favored few of the corporations, trusts and combines, and that is the classes and not the masses that are feeling the wave of so-called prosperity supposed to be sweeping the land by order of High Price Hanna. I bear some people, who ought to know better, say that McKinley has made a model executive and that they will vote to continue him in power, but most, if not all of the better class of voters, are for Bryan, who is as certain of Virginia's electoral vote, as death and taxes are inevitable.

The questions now agitating the people are the ones to be considered by the constitutional convention that the voters have decided shall be held. The main one is how to overcome the growing power of the Negro vote. An educational qualification is likely to be adopted, with the provision that no voter in 1861 or his descendants shall be disfranchised. A similar law has just been adopted by a tremendous popular majority in North Carolina, which has greatly encouraged the promoters of the scheme for a white man's government. Another reform is to show itself in the judiciary. It takes a fortune now to go to law, the court costs in many cases amounting to a dental of justice. I had a little experience in the line and had to pay over $100 costs in a case originally involving only $300. The Virginians are treading on dangerous ground though, when they go after constitutional conventions. They don't always do the right thing or the things expected of them as Kentucky knows and feels to her sorrow.

One of the most delightful of the many delightful experiences of this very pleasant outing was a short visit to my birthplace at Louis. It had been years since I had stopped there before, but the changes in the looks of the place were not as marked as the appearance of the people, most of whose faces were either new or forgotten. An only aunt and the last of a large family on my paternal side lives there and although the snows of 55 winters have fallen on her devoted head, she retains her youth and boyish spirits to a remarkable degree. She has grown old gracefully and with loving children to see that her last days are free from care or unsatisfied desire, she peacefully and philosophically awaits the time when she will join the loved ones on the other shore, which for the sake of the loved ones here I hope may be long delayed. The open hearted welcome I received at her home and the unmistakable gladness that shone in each eye of the family on my coming made me feel indeed and in truth that it was good to be there. I shall never forget the pleasure of the hours that sped all too fast in this charming home circle.

At Louis I had the honor of meeting Editor James E. Webb, of the News. Besides being a most affable and pleasant gentleman, he is a fine writer and an inventor. He has nearly perfected a type setting machine that will discount the Mergenthaler and make newspaper making a pleasant pastime, as with it a man can sit in his parlor and get all his matter in shape for printing almost without effort and with the greatest dispatch.

Most Stanford people will remember "Little White Walton from Virginia," who used to be an attache of the INTERIOR JOURNAL. They wouldn't know him now, however. He is 6 feet 3, weighs 220 pounds and the name of W. B. Walton fits at his mast head as editor and proprietor of the Hanover Herald, a prosperous and well edited newspaper. He is jarrered too and three good looking children now hang about his knee and call him "papa."

Except for the excessive heat and the terrible drought which has put a blight on all vegetation, thereby destroying the pleasing effects of many pretty landscapes and romantic places, my visit has been all that heart could wish. Everything has been done to add to our comfort and pleasure and many things have occurred to make our stay one that will only fade when memory itself is no more. We have spent most of our time in the cozy residential city of Ashland, whose houses are almost hid in the thick groves and vine-embowered surroundings in which they nestle. It looks much more like a summer resort than a business centre. There are scarcely half a dozen stores in town, the residents buying their supplies principally in Richmond, only 16 miles distant, and with which communication is had by 20 trains a day. Most of the men living there do business in Richmond, the railroad company by selling an annual ticket for $50, good to go and return as often a day as the holder wishes, making it cheaper for them to do so. Randolph Macon College, the largest Methodist school in the South, is located here, but the buildings are not very imposing. Within a few miles is the birthplace of Henry Clay and nearby the mill that he used to go to when a barefoot boy, which circumstances gave him the name of "The Mill Boy of the Slashes." The town is named in honor of his residence. Patrick Henry's home is not far distant and in Old Hanover C. H., seven miles away, he made some of the speeches that gave him fame, if indeed his famous "Give me liberty or give me death" was not said there. Many glorious memories cluster around the name of the county, but it is to the dearer ones that my mind is now directed. It was the home of my parents, who have for long years, slept beneath its sod and where I grew to manhood amid the fond surroundings of everything that contributed to a sweet old home, recollections of which grow brighter and stronger as the years go by. It is there that my only sister has her summer home and where for a week I have enjoyed its comforts and her good cheer and that of her boys, now some of them almost grown to manhood. A dear old maternal aunt lives there also and with the numerous cousins and old friends the hours have flown all too fast. It has been the most restful week I have enjoyed for years and has almost made me forget the trials and tribulations that beset a rural newspaper maker and unless they be recalled I will cease to scribble for the present for the "cheapest and best."

W. P. W.

We are again constrained to express the desire that there will be a long, strong and unanimous pull to either repeal or so modify the present election law as to cause it to meet with the approval of all fair-minded people. Every law in a government of the people by the people ought, if possible, to stand this test. While the present law is not one thousandth part as bad as represented, yet it is a stumbling-block in the paths of many good men who, without examining for themselves, have been misled by the misrepresentations and vilifications heaped upon it. It is now doubtless reconciled, for any body can stand a one cent aunt.

HANG the assassins on the blackberry tree.

MT. VERNON.

Workmen are making good progress on the various new buildings.

Reader, how many tree frogs have you seen during your existence?

Mrs. Thomas Howman died at an advanced age in Skaggs Valley Sunday. The telephone poles for the line between Wildie, Orland and Mt. Vernon are all set.

The band boys leave Wednesday to play three days for the G. A. R. reunion at Woodstock.

John Carter, a telegraph lineman, while trimming out brush Monday on the Wildie line, cut himself severely above the knee.

The old brick hotel will have its first floor changed into two store-rooms.

Work will begin as soon as S. W. Davis vacates for his new house.

William H. Colyer, one of Brodhead's best citizens, died Sunday night after a long illness of consumption. The burial was conducted by the Masonic fraternity.

The trouble between two stone companies at Langford seems to be settled, at least both companies are going ahead with work in spite of an injunction gotten out by one of the companies.

Judge Williams is yet at Mallory Springs and we are glad to say, is improving in health and Rockcastle county throughout, earnestly desires the early restoration to health of his noble defender of the people's rights.

If the band boys would refrain from playing so much on Sunday, especially during services at the churches, it would make a better impression upon visiting strangers and cause home folks to feel that the boys are all right, but have been somewhat thoughtless.

Miss Delora Brown, of Texas, who has had a delightful visit of several weeks with relatives in the Level Green neighbourhood, is with Mrs. G. H. Lawrence. Miss Callie Adams, who made many friends while here in the spring, is visiting her cousin, Miss Ida May Adams.

Mrs. Willis Adams and daughter, Miss Ida May, were in Crab Orchard last week. Miss Mollie Settles is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Short. Dr. A. E. Evers and daughter, Gladwin, returned Saturday from Lake Winona, Ind., where they have been spending their vacation.

Mrs. E. T. England and children, Nellie and Roy, of Barbourville, who have been for several days the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Willis Adams, left Thursday for Paint Lick to visit Mrs. England's mother, Mrs. Jack Adams. W. F. C. Champ was here from Paint Lick Sunday to see a Mt. Vernon belle. Ed Short was at home Saturday and Sunday. This is the first time Ed has been at home since he accepted the position with Mr. Creech, at East Bernstadt and his many friends were heartily glad to see him. Mrs. C. C. Williams and daughter, Rose, returned Monday from Mallory Springs.

Dr. P. W. Logan offers his splendid farm of 156 acres for sale in another column. He has sold nearly $4,000 worth of stock, cattle, feed, &c., off of it this year and has lots left.

WE were in error concerning the sale of Isaac Hamilton's bank stock. It will be sold here at 10:30 A. M., Sept. 10, court day.

YOU might spend a few hours pleasantly at the Hustonville colored fair this week. The cake walk will be worth your time to see.

IT would be a good idea to have the creek flooded occasionally. The odor from it at its present stagnant condition is not conducive to either health or happiness.

THE sale of the valuable real estate belonging to the late Squire J. S. Murphy comes off at public auction in front of the court-house tomorrow afternoon. See ad.

THE Earliest Workers' society of the Presbyterian church will have a "Socia Social" at the home of Mr. W. B. McRoberts' Thursday evening next. If you get a little sock, fill it with money and take it to the social.

A CINCINNATI man committed suicide because the carrier quit delivering his paper. We have been very apprehensive about some of our readers on account of mail irregularities, and extra precautions will be taken hereafter.

HELD—John Dixon, who was arrested at Crab Orchard, charged with stealing a valise belonging to Prof. C. C. Monroe, the Institute conductor, waived his examination trial and was held over to circuit court in $300, which he failed to give.

THE reception given by the Mission Band at the Christian church Friday evening was a most pleasing affair. Selections made by Misses Rita Belle Floyd, Claude Vernon, Josephine Hayden, Alice Hoffman, the wonderful Northeast children, of Kearny, Mo., and others. Ices and cakes were served, all for the small sum of 10 cents. The receipts were $22.80, which go toward building a home for the orphan children of India.

THE catalogues of the Liberty fair, which begins Wednesday, Sept. 5th, and continues three days, are in press at this office and will be out in a few days. There is a ring for almost everything and the premiums are as usual liberal. There will be running, trotting and pacing races each day and good horses are offered. The officers are F. P. Connett, president; James C. Coulter, vice president, and A. P. Young, secretary and treasurer. With such men as officers the fair can not be otherwise than a success. The directors and vice presidents are substantial citizens from a half dozen counties. If you want to have fun and lots of it make your arrangements to attend the Liberty fair.

KILLED INSTANTLY.—Lightning struck the house of John B. Anderson, in the Preachersville section at 1:30 Saturday afternoon and the shock instantly killed his wife, who was standing on the porch. Mr. Anderson was lying on a bed close to where a hole was torn in the wall and was also considerably shocked. With the exception of her eye brows and lashes being singed, there were no marks on Mrs. Anderson's body when the broken-hearted husband reached her side. The chimney was torn down and the house was considerably damaged. Besides Mr. Anderson, four children, the youngest of which is only four months, are left to mourn the loss of a loving wife and indulgent mother. The remains were laid to rest in the Goshen burying ground yesterday morning but the funeral will not be preached until next Sunday, when Eld. J. G. Livingston will do so at Goshen church. Mrs. Anderson was Miss Annie Johnson and a better christian woman would have been hard to find. Great sympathy is felt for the husband and children in the loss they have sustained.

THE following gentlemen spent Saturday at Crab Orchard Springs: Col. W. G. Welch, Judges M. C. Saulley, J. W. Alcorn, Hon. R. C. Warren, W. S. Burch, P. M. McRoberts, Harve Helm, Col. T. P. Hill, Judge J. P. Bailey and D. G. Gregory, Drs. J. F. Peyton and E. J. Brown.

FARMERS.—Return our wheat sacks at once or call and pay for them. We need them to receive wheat. This means you. J. H. Baughman & Co.

NEW STORE.—J. Gold has rented the little room on Lancaster street in the Commercial Hotel building and opened out a stock of china ware, granite ware, &c., evinces good taste and care.

LEN SHANNON writes us from Moreland that he was treated unfairly at the Danville fair. The blue tie was given to a 16-hand roadster in the phaeton ring over his fine entry when less than 15 hands high.

DR. P. W. LOGAN and his entire family extend heartfelt thanks to the many friends who, in the hour of distress, rendered grateful aid during the recent illness of their dear son and brother, "Woolie."

A PRIVATE tip comes that Dr. John M. Williams, of Mt. Vernon, will be nominated for Congress at the convention to be held in Richmond, but we are still backing our entry, the Hon. Gray Gilding Davison.

CARTER BROS.—Walter, George and Bynum, have rented Mr. Isaac Hamilton's store-room at Rowland and will open a general stock of merchandise at once. They are clever young men and have lots of friends who wish them well.

DEATH.—Mr. W. L. McCarty, of Kingsville, who was here yesterday, told us of the death of Wm. Payne, a good citizen of his section. He died of fever and was buried in the Murphy burying ground Sunday afternoon. Mr. Payne was 25 years old and left a wife and one child.

YOUTH attention is called to the announcement of Gus McCormack, who wants to serve his party as assessor. He made a splendid deputy under Assessor E. D. Kennedy and feels that with the experience he has had could fill the office creditably. Mr. McCormack is a dyed-in-the-wool democrat, an excellent citizen and is well equipped for the office he aspires.

THE strongest man will be nominated even if a Brown democrat has to be selected," said the Hon. Gray, Gilding Davison to a Courier Journal correspondent in Louisville the other day. He was talking through his hat about the republican's candidate for Congress in this district. "We will make my district the battle ground and expect to carry it with the aid of the Brown men," he continued, in his whistling effort to keep up his courage.

A SPLENDID SPEECH.—Attorney General R. J. Breckinridge spoke to a large and enthusiastic audience at the court house yesterday. His arraignment of the military and imperialistic tendencies of the republicans was the finest thing that we have heard or read on the subject. He then took up the issues of the State campaign and discussed them thoroughly, and displayed a complete mastery of the subject. Instead of stealing the offices the democrats had discovered the thieves who stole them and recovered their property. He exploded the claim of the legality of causing moonshiners to swarm in on the capital, but even if legal, they had no right surely, to create a reign of terror and commit asassination. The democrats had followed the law, and the proper tribunal had decided in their favor, and all acts of the usurpers and those acting under them, after the decision, were traitorous. He showed up the loose business methods of the republicans while he left. At least two clerks have been permitted to defraud in large sum by the auditor's failing to require them to make monthly reports. While the law doesn't permit a cent to be paid into the hands of the adjutant general, who gives no bond, upwards of $10,000 had been turned over to Collier for certain uses and they have Daniel busy now straightening his accounts. The former superintendent of public instruction by holding back funds of one year to make a big show the next, has gotten things into a terrible muddle. These are only samples of many shortcomings. They are on the hot track after many others. He has nothing to say against Yerkes personally, but in endorsing all the actions of his party, he has shouldered a great load. Certain speakers at the republican convention had said the Indiana patriots could come home when Yerkes was elected. Do they speak authoritatively? If the office of governor is rightfully Taylor's why don't they try to get it back for him? Wouldn't it be as unjust to give it to Yerkes as to Beecham? He is in favor of changing the Gobell law, because it needs changing. His description of the scenes attending the reign of terror, of which he was personal witness, was as fine a specimen of oratory as we ever heard. The speech was liberally applauded from beginning to end and produced a fine effect.

THE reception given by the Mission Band at the Christian church Friday evening was a most pleasing affair. Selections made by Misses Rita Belle Floyd, Claude Vernon, Josephine Hayden, Alice Hoffman, the wonderful Northeast children, of Kearny, Mo., and others. Ices and cakes were served, all for the small sum of 10 cents. The receipts were $22.80, which go toward building a home for the orphan children of India.
